

Good Spring Tonic

"We have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a spring tonic and as a blood purifier. Last spring I was not well at all. When I went to bed I was tired and nervous and could not sleep well; in the morning I would feel twice as tired; my mother got a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took. I felt like a new person when I had finished that bottle. We always have some of Hood's medicines in the house."—Hilvey Roselle, Marinette, Wis.

There is no "just as good" medicine. Insist on having Hood's.

Get it to-day in useful liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

TRIBUTE TO WOMEN OF CONFEDERACY

Vast Crowd Witnesses Unveiling of Monument at Columbia, S. C.

ERECTED BY MEN OF STATE

General C. Irvine Walker, Chief of Veterans, Presides Over Notable Meeting.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Columbia, S. C., April 11.—With 9,000 persons gathered from all parts of the State present, the monument to the Women of the Confederacy, erected by the men of South Carolina, was unveiled here to-day. The occasion was a notable one. Representatives of camps of Confederate Veterans, United Daughters of the Confederacy, Sons of Confederate Veterans, Children of the Confederacy, with educational institutions of the State, furnished the vast crowd. From the Winthrop College 700 girls came, and delegations were present from Lander College, Coker College, Clemson University of South Carolina, Columbia College, College for Women, orphaned Home College and Thornwell orphanage.

Presiding over the gathering was General C. Irvine Walker, commander of the South Carolina Division of United Confederate Veterans. The orator of the day was Joseph Barlow, perhaps the youngest Confederate veteran. The invocation and benediction were offered by John G. Richards, Sr., and F. S. O. Curtis, both chaplains in South Carolina regiments in the Confederate States Army.

After the unveiling of the monument, F. Wellington Ruckstuhl, the sculptor who created the group, was presented to the crowd, and Mr. Ruckstuhl and Captain William E. Gonzales, secretary of commission that raised the funds for the monument, were presented with powers from the Daughters of the Confederacy, the presentations being made by Mrs. C. E. Graham, State President.

The monument was received by A. L. Gaston, president of the South Carolina Division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Four grandchildren of Confederate veterans pulled the cords that drew the veil of Confederate South Carolina and United States flags that enveloped the monument.

Monument to South's Women

This group represents "The Glorification by the State of South Carolina and Her Children of the Women of the Confederacy."

The women of the Confederacy are symbolized by the woman seated in the chair of state. She is represented as reflecting over the thoughts suggested by the Bible, which she has been reading, or as if meditating over the past and future fate of her people. She is dressed in the plain costume in vogue at the close of the war, and her hair is of the same epoch.

Behind her comes the Genius of the State, with proud satisfaction at the privilege of honoring this blue woman. At her left is a winged boy, who rushes forward enthusiastically to pour a handful of flowers into her lap. On her right is a winged girl, timidly advancing, as if half afraid of the great woman, holding a bouquet in one hand and in the other a scroll or bill bearing the words, "Honored by the General Assembly of South Carolina," and also the Great Seal of the State. These three figures symbolize the whole people of the State coming to honor the women of the Confederacy.

Inscriptions on the pedestal are by the State—especially the men of the State—are thus honoring the women of the Civil War.

ROCHESTER HUSTLERS WIN IN NINTH FROM ROANOKE

Roanoke, Va., April 11.—The Rochester Hustlers, three champions of the International League, won out in the ninth inning to-day, an error by Bert Fisher allowing Conroy and Johnson to cross the plate with the winning tallies. After the Tigers had taken the lead in the first half of the round. The game was interesting from start to finish, the locals making up in hitting what they lacked in fielding. On the defensive the Tigers were weak in spots, and ten great glaring errors were piled up by them. But on the offensive the Magic City boys were certainly strong, going into the ninth with a lead of 5-0. Duke Holmes in a way that caused the former star of the Southern League to look very bad at times. Ginn, Garman and Counts led the sticking, and their work with the willow was refreshing.

AMUSEMENTS.

Bijou—"A Lucky Hoodoo."

Mr. Van's Good Show.

Although his vocal chords are so badly crippled that he can hardly sing or call for a drink above a whisper, Billy B. Van is putting over something at the Bijou this week which is called "A Lucky Hoodoo"—exactly what he knows—but it is clever throughout and it could still make a hit without the Beaumont Sisters, who are assisting Billy. Many people remember Van in the old minstrel days, and he is just as good as ever. So many wild melodramas have been presented at the Bijou that Mr. Van's comedy is extremely welcome, and many of those people who have been unable during the week to secure seats see more attractions at the Academy than at Charlie McKee's playhouse. These musical shows cost more than melodramas, but if the Bijou gets a few more lucky hoodoos it might lift the price without starting a riot.

Should the military be there to protect the jail from a release, the effect would be the same, since no judge would be likely, it is thought, to draw a distinction on such a point.
